Qardio expands its partnership with Apple as it announces the availability of the QardioArm smart blood pressure monitor in Apple Stores across the world.

Boldly described as a "blood pressure monitor you will actually love," the QardioArm pairs with iOS and Android devices (and respective companion Qardio app) to help users check on their blood pressure. It is the first medical device available via Apple Health, and allows users to easily share medical data with health professionals.

"We're thrilled to expand our global retail presence in collaboration with such a visionary retailer," Qardio says. "We share with Apple an absolute belief that purity of design coupled with technological innovation drives change, as we focus on creating beautiful, accessible products that lead to a healthier world without compromising lifestyle."

Go QardioArm