Nokia announces the X7, its latest Symbian-based smartphone, is now available.

The X7 is the company's first 4" smartphone, with glass and stainless steel contruction and a capacitive AMOLED display (640 x 360 resolution).

It runs Symbian's latest iteration, Anna, which Nokia says provides a fluid user experience. It carries an 8MP full focus camera with dual LED flash and 720p video recording capability.

Connectivity comes through wifi and 2G/3G.
