

Remember how HP has retail stores selling webOS-based devices? Not anymore, as HP hammers the last nail into the webOS coffin by closing down the US stores and gets rid of any remaining inventory.

Reports emerge of the stores selling Veer handsets for $50 and Pixi units for all of $25 (or $15 for 4 or more).

The news is just the last in a series relating to the HP fire sale, where TouchPad prices dropped to around $100.

We can definitely say our farewells to Palm now, then-- unless HP manages to find a willing buyer.

Go HP Closes Palm Retail Stores Forever \(Mobilemag.com\)

Go Arise from the Grave: The TouchPad is \(sort of\) Back