

Lenovo Intros ideapad Miix 700

Written by Marco Attard
04. September 2015

Lenovo presents a Microsoft Surface look-alike at IFA 2015-- the ideapad Miix 700, a 12-inch Windows 10 tablet complete with built-in kickstand and magnetically-attachable keyboard accessory.

The kickstand is actually one of the more interesting features of the tablet, since it has what Lenovo says are dual watchband hinges. Similar to the hinges in the Lenovo Yoga tablets, these allow the tablet to stand from 0 to 160-degrees.

Meanwhile the keyboard accessory doubles as a screen protector and comes complete with a stylus users can connect to a spare USB port.

Specifications-wise the Miix 700 carries Intel Skylake processors (up to Core m7) together with 8GB RAM, 256GB SSD and 5MP front/rear-facing cameras. Optional extras include LTE connectivity and RealSense 3D cameras.

The ideapad Miix 700 ships on November 2015.

Go Lenovo at IFA 2015