Written by Nick Graves
22. December 2011

It must be the season for portable dollies that fit phones, cameras…as we wrote about another one last month.

Meet Glidetrack's mobislyder, an ultraportable camera slider that allows you to create cinematic videos using your portable video device.

The mobislyder aims at iPhone users but also supports other phones and compact cameras.

"For years sophisticated-looking camera moves were only available to the pros that had big video budgets," the company says. "But now, with most camera devices capable of shooting HD video, mobislyder allows you to take smooth tracking shots fit for the silver screen —all with the sweep of a finger."

The mobislyder retail in USA will sell for $175.

Go mobislyder