

Do your customers demand the hands-free convenience of a speakerphone and the smoke-free nicotine of an electronic cigarette? They should be in luck with the Supersmoker Bluetooth, a device that's exactly the combination of the two.

According to its makers the Supersmoker Bluetooth "aesthetically combines the convenience of electronic smoking with modern-day technology." Curious description aside, the Supersmoker connects to smartphones via Bluetooth and provides a built-in microphone, speaker and a trio of buttons to handle call-answering duties. Not while smoking though, since one has to put the speaker next to their ear and the microphone near their mouth.

The speakers even allow use as music player, with buttons providing volume and playing controls. Just, again, not while smoking, since that requires one attachment of the co-called clearomizer unit to the battery.

The Supersmoker Bluetooth not only very real, but is available now in black, silver or gold.

Go Supersmoker Bluetooth