Written by Marco Attard
27. May 2016

Twelve South announces a version of the popular BookBook cases fitting the iPad Pro-- allowing customers to protect the tablet while giving it the appearance of a classic book.

Handcrafted in high-quality leather, each case is distressed so as to be given a unique look and features two hardback covers to protect the iPad while traveling. The iPad Pro version has a built-in pocket for the storage of a Pencil or stylus, while dual zippers keep the case firmly closed. To further protect the display the inside has a soft microfibre covering.

The case also has a built-in kickstand allowing users to set the iPad Pro at two different viewing angles-- one for writing, drawing and painting, the other for watching videos or displaying art.

The iPad Pro BookBook case is available now. Versions fitting the iPad Air 2 and iPad mini 4 are also in stock.

Go BookBook for iPad Pro