

Are your customers forced to choose between buying either a portable media player amplifier or... a frisbee? ThumbsUp suggests they can do both, with the Fli Tunes flying disk/amplifier combo.

Apparently the "craziest trend that's taking off all over Europe this summer" (not that we can tell from the miserable weather currently all over the continent), the Fli Tunes is little more than a hollow plastic disc in which one can put an phone, speaker or player.

ThumbsUp claims the gadget amplifies sound "doublefold" before one flattens it for a bit of flying disk fun. Err.
